Performance opportunity for young musicians aged 16-25

- Are you aged 16-25?
- Do you sing or play an instrument?
- Do you love music?

We are looking for young musicians to be part of a new production, Lost in Music.

What is Lost in Music?

Lost in Music is a new gig-theatre performance being created by composer Kim Moore and director/writer Nicholas Bone and produced by Magnetic North, a theatre company based in Edinburgh, in collaboration with North Edinburgh Arts in Muirhouse.

Lost in Music has been built around interviews with young people about what music means to them. Live music telling their stories, interwoven with the story of Orpheus and Eurydice, will be performed by a multi-talented ensemble including Alex Neilson (Trembling Bells), Claire Willoughby, Emily Phillips and Jill O'Sullivan (Sparrow and the Workshop, bdy_prts).

What is the opportunity?

We are looking for up to 8 young musicians to be part of the performances of Lost in Music at North Edinburgh Arts on Fri 1 and Sat 2 March 2019. The musicians will learn a new piece of music and will perform it alongside the professional cast as part of the performances. We are looking for instrumentalists (for example, guitarists, bassists, keyboard players) and singers.

Where does it take place?

North Edinburgh Arts Centre, 15A Pennywell Court, Muirhouse, Edinburgh EH4 4TZ

Will I get paid?

Yes! We will pay you for rehearsal and performance sessions at the National Minimum Wage for 21-24 year olds (£7.70/hour).

How much time will it involve?
